After college, Paterson spent a year teaching in a rural school in northern Virginia where her students later became the inspiration for the characters in Bridge to Terabithia. In preparation for her career as an overseas missionary, Paterson went to graduate school to study Bible and Christian education, and then in 1957 she traveled to Japan as a missionary, since China was closed to Americans. She spent four years in Japan and grew to love that country, intending to spend the rest of her ...

Certainly most of the females depicted in Bridge to Terabithia, Jess's sisters and female classmates in particular, are shallow and vain. Jess's father, on the other hand, from whom we see the most insistence on Jess's conformity to the masculine gender role, is worn by the many cares of his household, preoccupied with material concerns, and awkwardly undemonstrative with Jess. Jess is led to ...
